YOA ORCHESTRA OF THE AMERICAS

A Model UN for Musicians

by CRYSTAL CHAN

Before Mark Gillespie was Creative Director and General Manager of the YOA Orchestra of the Americas, he was Rodney Jerkins' protégé. Under Jerkins, who has produced stars from Michael Jackson to Lady Gaga, Gillespie shepherded the likes of TLC and Brandy to the Top 40. But when Gillespie, a classically trained pianist and composer, returned to classical music at the University of Oslo, he was disappointed. Where was the fun? Where were the fans? "It all kind of changed," says Gillespie, "when I witnessed my first YOA concert. And it felt more like a rock concert than any symphony. The musicians were my age, they were into it. They were real people."

SOUNDS LIKE TEEN SPIRIT

In 2006, Gillespie traded working with pop divas for grooming the YOA's young instrumentalists, who come from across the Americas and range from 18 to 30, with an average age of 24.

When it was founded in 2001, explains Artistic Advisor Plácido Domingo, "the dream of the YOA Orchestra of the Americas was to create an international orchestra of the best and brightest young musicians from across our hemisphere."

This year the YOA chose 80 musicians out of the 1000 who auditioned. There are no entry or participation fees. In 2009 they were among the first to audition through YouTube. The result is an incredibly selective process "equivalent to getting into Harvard," says Gillespie. YOA Music Director Carlos Miguel Prieto believes the musicians' youth and exceptional drive fuels "every single concert. There's this amazing feeling of a once-in-a-lifetime experience. The orchestra plays in a way that is unforgettable for anyone present."

Prieto is also Music Director of the National Symphony of Mexico and the Louisiana Philharmonic. "I spend most of the year working with established professional orchestras," he explains. "And they have their own rhythm. This orchestra is different."

For most of the talented teens and twenty-somethings, the YOA is their first ticket to another country. They are ambassadors; after each concert, musicians unfurl their country's flag from their music stands. Within the orchestra, they must work together as a musical United Nations.

Violinist Jessy Dubé, from Saguenay, who will tour Canada with the YOA this summer, says performing with the YOA in 2013 helped her "discover that music can build a bridge between people." She learned some Spanish on tour, as Prieto repeats everything in English and Spanish during rehearsal, but they both emphasize the surprising speed with which language and cultural barriers are transcended. And when they play Piazzolla, the Argentinians are on hand to teach everyone some tango.

"There's no project in the world, especially in music, that brings together such a wide variety of countries on an equal playing field," Gillespie believes. "Music and an orchestra are uniquely equipped to bring people from a variety of backgrounds together. There's nothing else except for a large-scale choir where you can have 120 people learning music together at the same time."

"There are so many dialects of popular music in Argentina versus Canada versus the Dominican Republic," he adds. "But the orchestra is this common element that they share."

Prieto agrees that "the orchestra has a unity which many professional organizations would pay for." And they do. Many alumni now play in professional orchestras.

A TOOL FOR SOCIAL CHANGE

"Before the YOA," says French horn player Julie Rochus from Aylmer, Ontario, "I didn't know classical music could be used as a tool for social change. I just wanted to get a job in an orchestra."

Rochus is a graduate of the YOA's Global Leaders Institute. Each year, twenty-four musicians are offered spots in the nine-month program of seminars taught in alliance with Oxford University. This year, McGill University joins as partner.

Students are equipped to teach music in volatile conditions and to diverse students, and then to become social entrepreneurs. These essential skills are not often taught in conservatories, the YOA believes. And today, they are vital.

"Education is the fastest growing market in classical music and there are very few schools thinking about how to prepare a top level musician to take on roles and responsibilities in this quickly growing world," says Gillespie.

This "social involvement is from the most grassroots level," says Prieto. Participants complete placements where they teach music, train local teachers and leaders, and jumpstart programs and research to help dissect local challenges. How do you fight for support when you have a mayor on one side of the political spectrum, and a premier on the other? How do you convince parents to place their kids in after-school music programs?

"Last year in Haiti it was as much about this work as it was the concerts," says Gillespie. "This experience transforms musicians because it shows them that service is equal to artistic achievement." In 2014 the YOA sent musicians to twenty-three different countries, including Canada.

"When the next chapter of the history of music is written, one story will be the rebirth of the symphony orchestra as a vehicle for social transformation," says Gillespie. "The orchestra, which is historically understood to be top-down, grown out of this elitist western European tradition, has been completely inverted in the Americas."

In 2010, Dubé "played in Colombian towns in the mountains. We would play for a crowd of maybe 2,000 people, because it was free. They were discovering classical music, and they were so enthusiastic." The YOA was even the first orchestra to play in Belize and Jamaica. "At the end of each concert we used to play some music from South America. And then – I will always remember – all the people in the audience would dance and sing along."

"In conservatories there's no focus on success being evaluated in terms of the ability of the music to actually change lives, connect with people and have an impact on society," says Gillespie. "This orchestra brings together the best of the classical tradition with the greatest aspects of popular music and its sense of connectivity, meaning, and purpose. In the Americas, the canon is being interpreted by young people, by new voices with an enthusiasm and an exuberance that has been lost. That's why these concerts are selling out when most symphony orchestras are trying to find ways to survive."

0 CANADA: THE FIRST TOUR

This year's 80 musicians hail from 25 North, Central, and South American countries (ten from Canada), plus France – French-speaking musicians were chosen from around the world as part of a partnership with the Orchestre de la Francophonie, another multi-national youth ensemble. For the first time, the YOA is touring Canada.

From July 5 to August 4 the orchestra will play twelve cities. Starting with a residency at Sistema New Brunswick, it stops at Toronto's PanAmerican Games and festivals across Ontario and Quebec: Stratford Summer Festival, Orford, Domaine Forget, Lanauidière, Laurentides, the Midsummer Music Festival. It will play car conventions and world-class concert halls. At Montreal's Maison symphonique, it will perform the world premiere of À L'Aube by Montrealer and YOA Composer-in-residence, Nicolas Gilbert.

With guest artists – Vadim Repin, Antonio Meneses, Alain Lefèvre, Ingrid Fliter, Alexandre Da Costa, Serhiy Salov, Hugo Laporte, Ricardo Castro, Jean-Philippe Tremblay, José Serebrier, Jean-François-Rivest, and Antonio Delgado – the YOA will perform major repertoire: Shostakovich's Symphony No. 11, Dvořák's Symphony No. 9, Prokofiev's Romeo & Juliet, Schubert's Symphony No. 9. These classics will play alongside Howard Shore's The Hobbit score – and even some Taylor Swift, arranged for orchestra.

A month after the YOA left Jamaica in 2014, their Prime Minister announced a quadrupling in investment for after-school music programs. Says Gillespie: "If we can get more families interested in music, if politicians like Stephen Harper can see that music as social development isn't just an opportunity in Colombia or Venezuela and Chile, but also an opportunity in Canada – this can produce incredible results."

SISTEMA NEW BRUNSWICK POWER TO THE PRETEENS

One boy wouldn't talk. He was so shy he curled into a ball for protection, like a hedgehog. Julie Rochus, his new music teacher, wondered what the eight-year-old feared.

Until she started teaching at Sistema New Brunswick in the fall of 2014, Rochus, who hails from Ontario, hadn't encountered troubled students on a regular basis. She soon learned that she had never taught students so motivated to excel, either. The boy who curled up in a ball? After nine months, he is her star student, the best French horn player. "He demonstrates for the class all the time," Rochus says. "He'll talk to anyone."

Some of her students play at a level far beyond their years. This year, thirteen Sistema students won seats in the New Brunswick Youth Orchestra. The principal trombonist, thirteen, and the second horn player, eleven, play alongside university music students.

Students in Sistema's supercharged music education program take free, three-hour music lessons every weekday and Saturday morning. Based on Venezuela's El Sistema program, started in 1975, New Brunswick started offering six-days-a-week training in 2009 expecting to enroll twenty children. Although the call was limited to Grades 1 and 2 students from four schools, 180 applied.

Today, Sistema New Brunswick teaches over 570 children in Moncton, Saint John, Richibucto, and the Tobique First Nation on reserve.

"We engage kids that are left out," explains founder Ken MacLeod. "This is a very damaging spiral for kids. And it can be intergenerational. Unemployment, underemployment, addictions, all these things are consequences."

This March, Sistema New Brunswick won a Prime Minister's Volunteer Award for Social Innovation, cited as "transforming the lives of children in profound ways" and as "an effective means of improving children's neural development and academic achievement."

Positive effects are furthered by a choir and a band for parents, and a musical program for mothers with toddlers. A study conducted by the Province of New Brunswick found that 84% of parents felt "more positive about their child's future" and 79% of school principals and teachers said that "Sistema increased the children's sense of belonging to the school."

"This is not the traditional approach to learning to play an instrument," says MacLeod. "The kids are part of the orchestra from the first day, so they learn that they can't be successful unless they're focused and disciplined; unless they respect their seatmate, and operate as a group. The orchestra is ultimately a society that has to cooperate. The kids are learning these values: focus, discipline, respect and cooperation. They now understand their capacity as human beings to be successful in their lives. And that's where hope and opportunity springs from."

How my summer festival experience led to La Scena Musicale

It seems like only yesterday, but twenty years ago, my first summer vacation changed my life. Why Seattle? I had seen an ad for Seattle Opera's 1995 summer production of Richard Wagner's Ring Cycle in Opera News. Back then, as now, a production of the Wagner Ring was a rarity in North America, and the Seattle Ring (1986 version) was coming back after a four-year pause before being retired. The timing couldn't have been better. A few years earlier, while doing graduate studies in math at the University of Michigan, I came to discover the entire Wagner Ring through listening sessions held at Ann Arbor's local record store; the passionate owner introduced us to Wilhelm Fürtwangler's 1960 La Scala Ring, and I took home the 20-LP set.

The Seattle Ring, aided by the substantial buzz on the rec.opera, the Internet's discussion group, and OPERA-L and the opera email list, was calling for me. I scored a single ticket in the last row of the top balcony, and luckily, found accommodations with the parents of my grad school-mate Kathy, who lived near Seattle. Those 4 operas over 7 nights totaling 19-and-a-half hours of Wagner's music, along with lectures and get togethers, was a magical experience, my first summer festival immersion. Acoustics in Seattle's old opera venue were terrific. The orchestra was equally wonderful. Sure, some of the singers were not the ideal, but this provided fodder for lively discussion, which members of OPERA-L did at each intermission, near the column at the entrance. It's this camaraderie that I so cherished; there, I met other passionate opera lovers, including fellow Canadian Joseph So, from Toronto, who became a friend and devoted contributor to La Scena Musicale and The Music Scene, and La Scena Musicale's Toronto Editor.

In fall 1995, I started making hobby lists of vocal music concerts and operas and emailed them to friends, throwing in a review of my Seattle Ring experience. This led directly to the founding of La Scena Musicale in September 1996.

As we prepare this special national issue on Canadian summer festivals (including our 19th annual Guide to 320 arts festivals), I can't help but think back to that special time in Seattle and also the gang at OPERA-L, how then, even before the Internet became universal, the network had such power to unite — which brings me to an exciting summer for LSM. Thanks to a financial contribution from the Canada Periodical Fund, we will be rebuilding scena.org, our award-winning music news website, with a new look, current technology and a new network for music and the arts. We hope you support this project through our upcoming crowd-funding campaign. Watch for it in September 2015 as we begin our exciting 20th season (including a Mentorship Program).

Your favourite Art Song

We are also launching The Next Great Art Song contest with a survey of the greatest art songs of all time. Let us know what your favourite song is by voting at www.nextgreatartsong.com (Deadline: July 31). Throughout 2015-16, we will publish a series of articles on the Art Song, counting down the top 10 songs; all this will culminate in our 20th anniversary Gala in fall 2016, where you get to vote for the top new Art Song.

Last May 3, we held our fundraising conference with music "In Conversation with Denys Arcand". Along with performances by soprano Florie Valiquette, the Q & A format was fresh and unique. Thanks to Denys Arcand and all who participated (see photos on page 46). We hope to organize this kind of event again next year.

AWARDS AND HONORS

The eleventh laureate of the prestigious Glenn Gould Prize, American composer Philip Glass, was hailed for his “extraordinary impact on the musical, artistic and intellectual life of his times.” Chosen from a list of international candidates nominated by the general public, Glass received a cash award of $100,000 – an amount doubled from previous years – and the Glenn Gould Prize statue by Canadian artist Ruth Abernethy. Glass will now choose an outstanding young artist to receive The City of Toronto Glenn Gould Protégé Prize of $15,000, to be announced later this year. The most recent recipients of the prize, which is awarded every two years, are Robert LePage (2013) and Leonard Cohen (2011).

Five Canadians have been named winners of the Governor General Performing Arts Awards, the country’s highest honour for lifetime artistic achievement. They include: WALTER BOURDEAU (↑), C.M., composer, conductor and artistic director; film and stage director Atom Egoyan; actress and director Diana LeBlanc; singer-songwriter Sarah McLachlan; and R.H. Thomson, C.M., actor, director, producer and arts advocate. A $25,000 cash prize contributed by the Canada Council for the Arts and a commemorative medallion produced by the Royal Canadian Mint accompanies the award. Jean-Marc Vallée, the Montreal-born director of Wild and Dallas Buyers Club is also being recognized with the 2015 National Arts Centre Award, which also carries a $25,000 cash prize. Philanthropist Michael M. Koerner was named as the recipient of the Ramon John Hnatyshyn Award for Volunteerism. On May 29, the awards were handed out by Governor General David Johnston at Rideau Hall, followed by a gala event at the National Arts Centre on May 30.

The Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto has named violinist James Ehnes and singer-songwriter Buffy Sainte-Marie Honorary Fellows, the Conservatory’s highest designation. The honours were celebrated with a special concert at Koerner Hall in May.

The two 2015 winners of the Canada Council’s John Hobday Awards in Arts Management, each receiving a $10,000 award, are Natasha Bood, executive director of Toronto Summer Music and Frank Nickel, senior business manager of Pacific Theatre. The award allows the winners to pursue professional development or mentorship opportunities.

Legendary Canadian soprano Teresa Stratas was among the honorees at the 10th Annual Opera News Awards, alongside Piotr Beczala, Ferruccio Furlanetto, Sondra Radvanovsky, and Samuel Ramey. The artists were feted by four hundred opera aficionados at a gala celebration on April 19 at the Plaza Hotel in New York City. Stratas was hailed as “a singing actress whose uncompromising performances established an indelible standard in all the roles that she inhabited” as well as “an extraordinary woman whose humanitarian work is an expression of her deep compassion.”

The Women’s Musical Club of Toronto held a special concert and competition final to grant its biannual Career Development Award. The three artists performing were pianist Charles Richard-Hamelin, who took the $20,000 first prize, cellist Stéphane Tétreault, taking the $10,000 second prize, and pianist Pierre-André Doucet, who received third prize and $5,000. Previous winners of the award include violinist James Ehnes, soprano Karina Gauvin, cellist Yegor Dyachkov, and soprano Shannon Mercer.

Conductor Stéphane Laforest has been awarded La Médaille de l’Assemblée nationale du Québec in recognition of his many artistic achievements. Founder and conductor of La Sinfonia de Lanaudière, as well as Artistic Director of the Sherbrooke Symphony, Laforest has previously held positions with the Thunder Bay Symphony, Orchestra London, New Brunswick Symphony, and l’Orchestre Symphonique de Québec.

HONORARY DOCTORATES:

CONCORDIA UNIVERSITY. Montreal-based violinist Angèle Dubeau is being recognized for “her success in making classical music accessible to a wider audience, as well as for her virtuosity as a player.” Dubeau has performed in more than 40 countries and recorded 42 albums, selling more than half a million records.

MCGILL UNIVERSITY. Robert Godin, founder of Baie d’Urfé-based business, Godin Guitars, which sells 200,000 hand-finished instruments each year to clients that include Paul McCartney, Roger Waters, John McLaughlin, and Leonard Cohen.

MCGILL UNIVERSITY. Constance Pathy is the president of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens and a passionate believer in the transformative power of the arts.

WESTMINSTER CHOIR COLLEGE OF RIDER UNIVERSITY. Conductor Yannick Nézet-Séguin.

MAJOR GIFT

Montrealer Elizabeth Wirth, a business woman and philanthropist, has donated

$7.5 million to McGill University’s Schulich School of Music. The gift will support new student awards including a $25,000 prize to be awarded annually to an exceptional voice student. Wirth has previously supported the school’s opera program with the Wirth Opera Studio, a rehearsal and performance space, and spearheaded a highly successful $1.3 million fundraising campaign to transform the facilities adjacent to the School’s Music Multimedia Room for recordings and research into sound. The building, formerly known as the New Music Building, will now be named the Elizabeth Wirth Music Pavilion.

CONDUCTING BUSINESS

Yannick Nézet-Séguin, who has become Canada’s most internationally visible and successful conductor, will step down from his post as principal conductor of The Rotterdam Philharmonic in 2018. He retains his position with the Philadelphia Orchestra – currently held through 2020 – and with Montreal’s Orchestre Métropolitain. Nézet-Séguin’s name was among those cited as possible replacements for Simon Rattle when he retires in 2018 from the helm of the Berlin Philharmonic – the May 11th vote by the musicians was inconclusive and the decision has been delayed to next year.

Gemma New is the new Music Director of The Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra. The 28-year-old New Zealand native has been hired on a three-year contract. New won the 2014-15 Dudamel Fellowship with the LA Philharmonic and will be conducting eight education outreach concerts in Los Angeles this spring. She is also the Associate Conductor at the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and founder/director of the Lunar Ensemble, a new music collective based in Baltimore. New is now one of three female music directors of professional orchestras in Canada.

Conductor Nathan Brock is off to Germany in June to join the conducting staff of the Hamburg State Opera. The two-year position includes conducting several opera and ballet productions, as well as assisting Kent Nagano, who is beginning his five-year tenure as the company’s general music director.

IN MEMORIAM

Canadian soprano Clarice Carson has died at the age of 86. Before retiring from the concert stage in 1986, Carson performed regularly with Metropolitan Opera, Scottish Opera, Lyric Opera of Chicago, Netherlands Opera, Venice’s La Fenice, l’Opéra de Montreal, and the Canadian Opera Company, among many others. She is perhaps best known for her role as Tosca for Radio-Canada television in 1970. Carson was inducted in the Canadian Opera Hall of Fame in 1998. She had recently donated her archive of scores and recordings to the International Resource Centre for Performing Artists reference library, which plans to open in her name in the fall of 2017.

ONJ MONTREAL ORCHESTRA ON THE MOVE

by MARC CHÉNARD

A recent arrival, the sixteen-piece Orchestre national de jazz — Montréal made its debut in July 2013 at the city's summer jazz festival. Since then, it has completed two seasons of performances, 14 in total, including last year with special guest trumpeter Terrence Blanchard and his quintet. While all cities, both big and small, have big bands, this one is a bit different. Some play stock arrangements and limit their activities to rehearsals when others are vehicles performing original music by a composer, most often of its leader, but the ONJ — Mtl embraces both, repertoire and original material alike.

In the Swing Era big bands were the toast of the jazz world, but such large outfits are luxuries nowadays. Either they are maintained in schools, subsidized by private sponsors, like Jazz at Lincoln Center, or by public funding, viz. the European Radio Jazz big bands in Germany and Denmark.

Starting up such a venture may well seem counterintuitive in this era of small is beautiful, but the guiding spirit behind this, Jacques Laurin, is resolved to make it happen, although quite realistic in his outlook. A bassist by training and a recording engineer by trade, he decided to make do on his intention by looking at what others do: "If classical ensembles and theatre companies get sponsorships to produce complete seasons of performances, why can there not be something similar for jazz?"

Inspired by those European institutions — the state supported ONJ in France, for example — Laurin still has a way to go to fulfill his ambitions. Now two years down the road, both he and his brainchild are at a crossroads, but when looking at the summer schedule, prospects seem brighter than ever. For one, it will play not only the jazz festival in Montreal, but also two others in the province, both classical events (see below for dates and places). On two occasions, they will perform the music heard on their debut recording, set to come out this month. More on that later.

Sandwiched between those concerts is a very special event that marks another first in the group's young history: on August 2nd, they welcome guest composer and arranger Matthias Rüegg leading the troops through a program of Ellingtonia. In 2003, this Swiss-born musician devised the appropriately titled "Duke Ellington's Sound of Love" program for his renowned Vienna Art Orchestra, a veritable Old World institution he kept afloat for an amazing 33 years, till its disbanding in 2010.

achieved some notoriety, thanks to great sponsorships and label backing, but it might not be quite a household name for the average music lover. Asked about the reasons for choosing this European in particular, Laurin states: "I like his broad musical vision. He is not only intent on creating his own music but also exploring existing repertoires, both jazz and classical, and in ways that are both fresh and offbeat. And that corresponds to my own perspective and where I want to bring the orchestra, for the musicians' sake, but also to the benefit of the audience."

True to his inclinations, Rüegg has avoided some of the obvious in his takes on Ellington. For starters, he has replaced the 'rikitiki', as the Maestro whimsically called his instrument, by a guitar. By doing this, he can get around the Duke's stylings — and he certainly was one of the most distinctive sounding pianists in jazz — so as to put his own imprimatur on the music. Moreover, he chose several lesser-known numbers, tunes like Very Special, Little Max or Rem Blues, all from the pianist's 1962 album Money Jungle, the famous encounter à trois with modernists Charles Mingus and Max Roach. But the concert won't be devoid of staple pieces either: in fact, the opening half of the show will focus on sub groups jamming on many well worn vehicles; after intermission, the whole band will have a go at Caravan and the historical Diminuendo and Crescendo in Blue. Don't bet on a remake of the 1956 version immortalized by those 27 choruses by Paul Gonsalves, but this take will generate its own excitement.

An auspicious meeting indeed, but more importantly one that could set a precedent for further projects between the orchestra and its special guest, maybe even others. But as alluded to earlier, this event, which closes the 38th annual edition of the De Lanaudière festival, and on its splendid outdoor stage to wit, is but the proverbial icing on the cake. Its two main layers will provide generous fare in the form of a forty-minute suite penned by its pianist, Marianne Trudel. On Canada Day, the ONJ will take over the main outdoor stage of the Montreal Jazz Festival for a pair of nightly shows; five weeks later they will reprise that work at the Orford Festival. And for those not able to make it, there is a fine document of it, released this very month on the ATMA label. (See review.)

With a full plate before them but also with an eye on a third concert season coming this fall, all bodes well for the ONJ's future. And if some added backing comes in, the best may well be yet to come. So who says things ain't what they used to be for big bands? LSM

SURE BETS

RENÉE ROSNES

Since the 1980s, this native Canadian pianist has established herself comfortably on the American jazz scene. An early record deal with Blue Note was a boon to her career, which led her to several plum jobs backing stars like Freddie Hubbard, Joe Henderson and Wayne Shorter. In 2004, she began a tenure with the high profile San Francisco Jazz Collective while tending to her own projects, like the piano duo she shares with her current partner Bill Charlap. Her return home this month will be an auspicious one, as she hits five Canadian festivals fronting a quartet including vibraphonist Steve Nelson. In Montreal, she appears twice, with bassist Avishai Cohen on June 27 and guesting in the trio of legendary bassist Ron Carter on July 4.

KENNY WERNER

A keyboardist of note, Kenny Werner is one of those naturals, who, it must be noted, is blessed with perfect pitch. This summer, he is on the Canadian festival trail with seven appearances, from Vancouver to Ottawa and points in between. This tour marks his return to the preferred format of all pianists, the trio with bass (Johannes Weidenmüller) and drums (Ari Hoenig). This group will surely perform material from a soon to be released disc on Pirouet records. (See review on the following page.)

BOLD STROKES

DAVE DOUGLAS HIGH RISK

After last year's falling through of a quartet tour with the Doxas brothers from Montreal, trumpeter Dave Douglas gets the call this year with a newly struck all electric quartet. With bassist Jonathan Maron, percussionist Mark Giuliana and DJ Shigeto in tow, the leader, known for changing groups like he changes shirts, will be offering his own take on the currently very hip electro-jazz saga. Hailed in the nineties as the flip side of the Wynton Marsalis coin, Douglas has pretty much left the outer rims of the jazz universe to now achieve his current success in a more comfortable orbit. Proof of that is a recent release on the Blue Note label with another modern jazz icon, saxophonist Joe Lovano.

PAAL NILSSEN-LOVE LARGE UNIT

Spearheaded by a Norwegian drummer, this free wheeling company of eleven hardy Norwegians crosses the Big Pond this month for several North American dates, including three Canadian festivals. Egged on by their leader, this ensemble of primarily young compatriots is comprised of three brass, two reeds, an electronics man, a guitar, two basses and a second drummer. They run the whole gamut from high octane blowouts to the barest of whispers, with some compositional material that at times recall the feisty spirit of Charles Mingus. After a two-evening stop at Montreal's Suoni per il Popolo Festival (June 20 and 21), they move on to Ottawa the next day and land in Vancouver five days later. A bracing experience to say the least. (See box set review on next page.)

CHRISTINE JENSEN ORCHESTRA

A big winner on this year's jazz festival touring circuit, saxophonist and composer Christine Jensen brings her 18-piece outfit on a cross-Canada tour, including stops in Vancouver, Victoria, Medicine Hat, Winnipeg, Toronto and two bonus nights south of the border in Rochester. A composer in the lineage of Kenny Wheeler and Maria Schneider, her music is quite pastoral in tone, with a definite preference for lush modal harmonies over spiky dissonances.

CURTIS NOWOSAD

While Winnipeg might not be the hotbed of jazz in Canada, it too can produce some solid talent. Drummer Curtis Nowosad, for one, hails from there, but like many with ambition he made his way to the Jazz Mecca. His debut album on the Vancouver Cellar Live label (see next page) puts him at the helm of a classic hard bop quintet (3 rhythm + sax and trumpet). While the general musical tenor is quite familiar, the drummer updates things a bit with his clatterings around the kit. Jazz fans in Victoria (June 24), Edmonton (22) and Winnipeg (19) can check him out first-hand.

RODDY ELLIAS TRIO

A guitarist in the lineage of Jim Hall or Ed Bickert, Roddy Ellias is a discrete stylist who plays in an understated way. After a lengthy teaching career at Montreal's Concordia University, he has bowed out, most likely to focus on his love of playing. An impeccable technician, he eschews all virtuosic displays, or electricity for that matter, a case in point being his latest album, where he plays acoustic only. (See review.) With appropriate accompaniment provided by drummer Thom Gossage and bassist Adrian Vedady, he will simply let his fingers (and strings) do all of the talking during a seven-city tour with stops in Rochester, New York, (June 24), Edmonton (25), Victoria (26), Vancouver (28), Toronto (July 2,3), Montreal (5) and Halifax (9)

PIANOS CAMÉLÉON

The main architects of this pianistic adventure, which got its start two years ago, are Mat Herskowitz and John Roney. Oliver Jones invites them along with their colleague Julie Lamontagne for the FIJM's closing show on Sunday, July 5. Two by two with their host, they will perform a cross-section of evergreens from the classical and jazz repertoires. Quite a ... pianorama!

OFF THE RECORD

by MARC CHÉNARD

Christine Jensen Jazz Orchestra –

Habitat – Justin Time Records JTR 8583-2

In 2011, saxophonist and composer Christine Jensen presented her first orchestral album Treelines. Buoyed by rave reviews, this B.C. native and now resident Montrealer released this second disc in the fall of 2013. Six lengthy works fill up the side, but unlike its predecessor, there is no theme or unifying thread to it. Instead, they are inspired by recent events, like a protest march by some Quebec native people to Ottawa, or travel impressions, some gleaned from a trip to Peru. This summer she is fortunate enough to take her music on the road for five dates across Canada and two evenings south of the border. As a bonus, her sister, trumpeter Ingrid, tags on, and who knows, she may have some new charts in the book. A definite must for those who appreciate well crafted music with clean harmonies and spotless playing.

Era Ale – PNL Records PNL025CD

Unlike the bands above and below this review, this outfit is not composer-driven but performance generated. It is a collective of eleven musicians with a noholds barred attitude to music making.

Its leader, Norwegian drummer Paal Nilssen-Love, has recruited a hoard of newcomers all capable of wailing with reckless abandon. Their efforts are documented in this three CD box set, the first two produced in studio, the third live. The latter contains four pieces heard elsewhere in this set; in fact one is presented four times. But what is the purpose of this, when it is basically a free form collective improvisation with minimal material to it? In fact, most of the music unfurls that way but it is the written parts that surface, too, and are welcome diversions. However, at a time when the writing is on the wall for the silver disc, bringing out box sets is a rather reckless enterprise. But so is music.

Orchestre national de Jazz - Montréal

Dans la forêt de ma mémoire – Disques Atma CD2 2730

The single work culled on this disc was premiered on May 1, 2014, at the final concert of this orchestra's debut season. A programmatic piece of sorts, it is a seven-part suite, two of the parts being short introductions to longer movements. The ensemble's pianist, Marianne Trudel, was commissioned to write for the group and in true jazz fashion she delivers a series of pieces with their own titles, some of them quilted together. Overall, the results are quite convincing, for the composer scores each piece with savvy, using Gil Evans colourings in spots, while allowing for some open-ended improvisations. Kudos to those involved in the recording, mixing and mastering, as the sound quality only heightens the listening experience. But at 42 minutes, the side is short, and a piece or two from a concert devoted to women composers could have rounded it out. Also, the applause between movements could have been removed, but those quibbles aside, it is still a fine example of orchestral jazz music in the present tense.

Kenny Werner Trio

The Melody – Pirouet PIT3083

While not a major jazz star, pianist Kenny Werner is a known quantity to any self-respecting aficionado. This album marks his return to the piano trio format after a hiatus, with his trusted bandmates, bassist Johannes Weidenmüller and drummer Ari Hoenig. This is a recording that pretty well illustrates the state of modern mainstream jazz piano trios, where the musicians engage in three-way conversations rather than having a piano backed by a couple of time keepers. The leader contributes four originals and reconfigures pieces by Coltrane (26-2), Brubeck (In Your Own Sweet Way), even a Tom Jones pop tune (Try to Remember) with unconventional twists. The latter tune is also a good microcosm of Werner's world, as it segues from lyrical classical harmonies to jazzier phrasings and back, all in eight minutes. Overall, the pace is deliberate from start to finish, with little need to rush or create too much tension. Catch them this month at a Canadian festival near you.

Curtis Nowosad

Dialectics – Cellar Live 010115

Winnipeg native Curtis Nowosad appears to be a go-getter set to make his way in the Jazz Mecca, his home base. Spearheading a quintet of classic instrumentation (piano trio with tenor sax and trumpet), this drummer delivers nine pieces in true hard bop form, six of which he penned, the remaining items being jazz standards, including Monk's Bye Ya. While the music is familiar in style and delivery, the leader still gives it an edgy and at times busy playing. His American colleagues are all very deft, but no one really stands out in the pack. For those who like a slightly updated take on 20th Century modern jazz, this one is for you. (See festival picks article for dates and places.)

Roddy Ellias Trio

Monday's Dream – Kwimu Music

The abstract painting in hushed hues of grey and blue that adorns the cover of this record is a good visual cue to the type of music heard on this album. Guitarist Roddy Ellias picks his way nimbly and gently through 11 of his pieces on an acoustic model. Equally unassuming are his partners, bassist Adrian Vedady and drummer Thom Gossage, the latter acting more like a percussionist colouring the proceedings than a jazz tubman holding the beat. Blessed with impeccable technique, the leader forgoes all instrumental prowess, which far too many plectrists fall prey to, and plays in a concise manner, no tune lasting over seven minutes. A long-time guitar instructor, Ellias has now retired, and this record is a first step back to a more active performance schedule, one that is shaping up well in light of the nationwide festival tour starting this month.

SIGISWALD KUIJKEN AT THE MONTREAL BAROQUE FESTIVAL

We can count on Suzie Napper and Matthias Maute to surprise us with eclectic programming. On June 25 at 7 pm, at Redpath Hall, we'll dance with the gypsies in the company of Ensemble Caprice. After this, at 9 pm, the legendary Belgian violonist Sigiswald Kuijken will play the first part of the Bach suites for violoncello da spalla, an instrument never before heard in Montreal. Soprano Suzie LeBlanc and musicologist Gilles Cantagrel will take part in this concert entitled Heavenly Bach, the two remaining parts to be performed on June 26 at 5 pm and June 27 at 4 pm.

The four days of the festival will include Ensemble Fuoco e Cenere from Paris, Les Boréades de Montréal, Studio de musique ancienne de Montréal and the French vocal Ensemble Discantus. On June 27, in a marathon from 11 am to 5 pm, music lovers can explore

FESTIVAL ORFORD - MEETING OF TALENTS

Festival Orford 2015 takes as its theme journeys and national schools. This year for the first time, Académie internationale Orford (founded by Jean-François Rivest) and Orchestre de la Francophonie (founded by Jean-Philippe Tremblay) will perform together. The two will alternately conduct the first concert of the festival, which takes place on June 27. In July, the YOA Orchestra of the Americas will join them to create a vast orchestra of 80 musicians from around ten countries. They will play two concerts at Saint-Jean-Bosco church in Magog.

A large portion of the programming is dedicated to piano, and includes a recital by the young Torontonians prodigy Anastasia Rizikov (July 3), as well as the Quebec debut of a pianist making a big splash internationally, the German Martin Helmchen (July 23). The Vienna Piano Trio will also appear (July 5), as will Charles Richard-Hamelin (August 7), Richard Raymond and Jimmy Brière. They will later be joined by two MSO percussionists (August 14), and the popular Orford Six Pianos in a Spanish program featuring a flamenco dancer (August 1).

In the strings portion, the NEW ORFORD STRING QUARTET [↓] will play the new piece Par quatre chemins by François Dompierre (July 11). You'll also be able to enjoy recitals by Alexandre Da Costa (July 10), Stéphane Tétrault (July 24) and brothers Nikki and Timothy Chooi (August 9).

For the closing concert (August 15), Violons du Roy will present one of their most popular programs: Piazzolla, Tango et musique de l'Argentine, with the poetry of Borges read by Sébastien Ricard, Denis Plante on the bandoneon and Pascale Giguère's passionate violin. June 27 to August 15. www.arts-orford.org

FESTIVAL DE LANAUDIÈRE

From July 4 to August 2 Lanaudière will be thrilling music lovers. The Orchestre Métropolitain opens the festival under the baton of Yannick Nézet-Seguin with Anton Bruckner's Mass No. 3 in F minor. Soloists include Karine Boucher, Stéphane Pothier, Jean-Michel Richer and Cairan Ryan. On July 17, an evening of film with live music will interest cinephiles as much as music lovers with Rupert Julian's The Phantom of the Opera, with the orchestra on stage. Composer and pianist Gabriel Thibodeau conducts the Orchestre des concerts cinématographiques.

On July 25, popular soprano Marie-Josée Lord presents Tous en chœur with the Orchestre du Festival under the direction of Julien Proulx. The evening is dedicated to opera's best arias.

You won't want to miss Alain Lefèvre's rendezvous with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra on July 31 in an evening of Scandinavia and Romanticism with Sibelius's Finlandia, Grieg's Piano Concerto, and Brahms's Symphony No 2. Kent Nagano conducts, at the Amphithéâtre Fernand-Lindsay.

As for concerts in churches, the Violons du Roy will present Cantata BWV 1083, "Cancel, highest, my sins" with soprano Mireille Asselin and mezzo Michèle Losier, under the direction of Mathieu Lussier at Église Saint-Henri.

As always, pianists are also featured in the region's churches, notably Alexander Melnikov, who performs Chopin's 24 Preludes at Église de Saint-Paul-de-Joliette on July 13. www.lanaudiere.org

FESTIVAL INTERNATIONAL DU DOMAINE FORGET

The 37th Festival International du Domaine Forget takes place from June 20 to August 23, and will once again welcome many artists of international renown. Notable among the musicians invited are pianist Jean-Efflam Bavouzet performing Beethoven sonatas (June 27) and pianist Pascal Amoyel, who will perform the multimedia concert Le pianiste aux 50 doigts ou l'incroyable destinée de György Cziffra (The Pianist with 50 Fingers, or the Incredible Destiny of György Cziffra). On July 25, the Orchestre Symphonique du Québec, under the baton of Jacques Lacombe, presents a concert of movie music with formidable American violinist Rachel Barton Pine. On July 4, I Musici de Montréal welcome contralto Marie-Nicole Lemieux for a program dedicated to Respighi, Ravel, Berlioz and Saint-Saëns. www.domaineforget.com

FESTIVAL CLASSIQUE DES HAUTES-LAURENTIDES

The 17th edition of the Festival Classique des Hautes-Laurentides will offer 15 concerts from June 27 to August 29 in nine municipalities in the Laurentians, from Saint-Faustin-Lac-Carré to Mont-Laurier. Many concerts are free. Among the most interesting events is a concert with ALEXANDRE DA COSTA [➔], the festival's director, and the Acacia Ensemble, who will perform a program commemorating the end of WWII on July 31 at Domaine Saint-Bernard-de-Mont-Tremblant. Works by Elgar, Barber, and a new work commissioned from the festival's composer-in-residence, Airat Ichmouratov, are on the program. La Musique du Royal 22^e Régiment offers a large-scale concert in the same vein the following day, in collaboration with Veterans Affairs Canada at Église de Saint-Jovite.

FESTIVAL D'OPÉRA DE QUÉBEC

The Festival d'Opéra de Québec celebrates its fifth year and will take place from July 30 to August 5. The most eagerly awaited event of this fifth edition is without a doubt Kaija Saariaho's L'Amour de loin, staged by Robert Lepage and featuring Phillip Addis, Erin Wall and Tamara Mumford. It is a collaboration with New York's Metropolitan Opera, on July 30 and 1st and August 3 and 4, at the Grand-Théâtre de Québec. This year, the festival will present once more a 'Brigade Lyrique' who will perform in various locations in the city, as well as a concert with apéro and animation. Rossini will be the featured composer in this popular event. The festival will welcome beloved lyrical stars Natalie Choquette with her show Diva by night, on July 23, and a trio made up of Marie-Josée Lord, Marc Hervieux and Gino Quilico, accompanied by the Lanaudière Sinfonia for the Bernstein à Plamondon concert, will focus on famous musicals on July 28. www.festivaloperadequebec.com

FESTIVAL-OPÉRA DE SAINT-EUSTACHE - PLACE AUX JEUNES

From July 10 to 12, Saint-Eustache's Festival-Opera will welcome baritone Hugo Laporte, winner of the OSM Standard Life Competition, as well as the winners of the Jeunes Ambassadeurs lyriques. They will perform a free concert at the Promenade Paul-Sauvé, behind Saint-Eustache church (July 12, 2:30 pm). Male soprano Étienne Cousineau, discovered on La Voix, will present a mix of opera arias and musicals, on July 11 at La petite église art centre. He will be accompanied by soprano Geneviève Charest and pianist Pierre McClean. www.festivaloperasteustache.com

CARMEN AT OSM'S CLASSICAL SPREE

A must-see event at the end of the summer, the 4th Classical Spree will begin on August 5 with a free outdoors concert conducted by Kent Nagano. This year, a shortened version of Bizet's Carmen will be presented at the Olympic Park, featuring MICHÈLE LOSIER [☛], Joseph Kaiser and Marianne Fiset.

As in previous years, 30 low-price 45-minute concerts and a variety of free activities will take place on August 7 and 8, to present the beauties of classical music to the public. In a highly-anticipated concert, Canadian violinist James Ehnes will perform Frank Zappa's Envelopes. Kent Nagano will conduct Beethoven's famous 5th Symphony, and organist Jean-Willy Kunz, in the company of animator Patrice Bélanger, will present Le Carnaval des animaux to children, using multimedia projections as well as the various sonorities of the Pierre-Béique organ. Jazz pianist Oliver Jones will be present, along with other celebrities of the classical music scene. August 5 to 8. www.vireeclassique.osm.ca

Panamania, the Arts and Culture Program, in conjunction with the Games, is taking place simultaneously July 10 to 26 (Parapan American Aug. 7-15), with more than 250 performances and exhibitions. It will showcase the diverse cultures and artistic excellence of Ontario, Canada and the Americas through music, theatre, dance, visual arts and fashion. Details at www.toronto2015.org/panamania

Toronto Summer Music Festival celebrates its 10th season with The New World, an exploration of the diverse genres of music in the Americas – from Gershwin to Copland to Jazz to Tango. Europeans the likes of Dvorak, Korngold, Bartok and Schönberg, composers who sojourned in the Americas, will be featured. TSMF opens with MEASHA BRUEGGER-GOSMAN (↑) singing selections from Porgy and Bess, plus Rhapsody in Blue and Appalachian Spring (July 16). There's even a

Broadway show - The Last Five Years (July 29 & 30). Pianist Garrick Ohlsson plays on July 23. Finnish diva KARITA MATTILA (↑) gives a recital on August 7, while her countrywoman, the great soprano Soile Isokoski is a mentor in the Art of the Song program. www.torontosummermusic.com

Luminato Festival's (June 19-28) program is as cutting edge and eclectic as ever. Don't expect the usual and the mundane when it comes to Luminato. If you are looking for the more conventional classical musical offerings, there won't be a whole lot. The Toronto Symphony Orchestra Late Night returns this year with Holst's The Planets. Canadian composer R. Murray Schafer offers Apocalypsis, a work that is epic in scope and audacious in spirit, involving 1,000 local singers, musicians, conductors, actors and dancers. June 26, 27, 28 at the Sony Centre. www.luminatofestival.com

Elora Festival (July 10-26) opens with Handel's grand oratorio Solomon, with the Elora Festival Singers, the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, the Festival Orchestra and (as yet unannounced) soloists under the baton of Noel Edison. A performance of Bach's B

Minor Mass is on July 17. Canadian pianist DAVID JALBERT gives a recital on July 19 of works by Satie, Poulenc and Stravinsky. www.elorafestival.ca

The 2015 Westben Festival, under the directorship of Brian Finley, has a varied program of old and new, the classical and the popular. Some of the highlights include Fiddler on the Roof (June 6, 7, 12, 13, 14), La traviata (July 2, 3, 4, 5), Kings on Broadway (July 22, 23, 24, 25), STEWART GOODYEAR playing the Goldberg Variations (July 19), Mary Lou Fallis and Peter Tiefenbach (July 17), and soprano Marie-Josée Lord (July 18). www.westben.ca

Brott Music Festival opens with Bruckner's Fourth Symphony on June 18. Two opera programs this year: PopOpera an evening of operatic warhorses on July 16 with soprano Helene Brunet, mezzo Charlotte Burrage, tenor David Menzies, baritone Christopher Dunham and others, and the same cast in a semi-staged The Barber of Seville on July 23. Pianist STEWART GOODYEAR plays Beethoven's Emperor Concerto, together with Dvorak's New World Symphony with Boris Brott conducting the National Academy Orchestra. This last concert takes place at Festival of the Sound on August 9. www.brottmusic.com

Music and Beyond (July 4 to 17) The Auryan Quartet plays a total of three concerts at the Festival. On their July 5 program are works by Haydn, Ravel, and Mendelssohn at 2 pm. In the evening, it's the National Arts Centre Orchestra conducted by Boris Brott in a program of Beethoven, Mozart, and Alexander Brott. On July 9, mezzo Wallis Giunta, gives a one-of-a-kind recital that combines music and fashion! On the program are works by Strauss, Schubert, Barber, Vaughan Williams, Berlioz, Monteverdi, Schumann, Duparc as well as Joni Mitchell and Gordon Lightfoot. There's also a fashion show from McCaffrey Haute Couture. www.musicandbeyond.ca

Ottawa Chamber Fest 2015 (July 23 to August 6) Pianist Louis Lortie and violinist Augustin Dumay team up for a duo recital of works by Brahms on July 24. The Pacific Baroque Orchestra under the baton of Alexander Weimann offers an interesting program that juxtaposes Purcell's Dido and Aeneas with a contemporary piece, James Rolfe's Aeneas and Dido (July 27). Pianist Andre Laplante gives a solo recital of Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Schubert and Liszt (July 31). Uncle John, Toronto's Against the Grain Theatre's successful re-imagining of Mozart's Don Giovanni, travels to Ottawa on August 6. Joel Ivany directs Cameron McPhail as Uncle John, with the Cecilia Quartet and Stephen Hargreaves supplying the music. www.chamberfest.com

WESTERN FESTIVAL PICKS

By BILL RANKIN

Edmonton removed the sign at the southern entrance to the city boasting that Alberta's capital was "The City of Champions." However, Edmonton is still renowned for its summer festivals. National Geographic just endorsed the city as a summer destination because of its lively festival scene.

Among those festivals are three that bracket Alberta's short summer season. Opera Nuova's Opera and Music Theatre Festival (formerly Vocal Arts Festival) begins with a Song and Aria Showcase, May 22, and wraps in early July with two contemporary American operas: Ned Rorem's Our Town and Jake Heggie's Dead Man Walking. The festival also includes a production of Oklahoma.

Calgary Opera, offering a lighter fare in the summer, stages eight performances of Mikado in its third outdoor Opera in the Village, Aug. 13 to 22.

On the instrumental side, The Edmonton Chamber Music Society mounts its 10th Summer Solstice Festival June 18 to 21. This festival presents some of Canada's finest classical musicians, and back this year are violinist LARA ST. JOHN [↑], cellist Denise Djokic, and pianist Matt Herskowitz. The programming for this festival is largely classical, but it also pushes boundaries. Featured this year is a George Gao on erhu.

On Labour Day Weekend, the Edmonton Symphony returns to Hawrelek Park for Symphony Under the Sky. Last year the orchestra was forced indoors because the canopy covering the amphitheatre had blown off.

The Banff Centre, west of Calgary, offers a variety of arts programming. The beautiful Rocky Mountain campus presents classical concerts in its Serenade at St. George's and its Music for a Summer Evening series. Many of the performers are young musicians honing their skills at the Centre.

At the University of Winnipeg, in Manitoba, the Agassiz Chamber Music Festival runs June 6 to 12. The programming is unleavened classical, with featured artists clarinetist James Campbell and pianist STÉPHANE LEMELIN [↑], among others.

On the long August weekend, Manitoba's Clear Lake Chamber Music festival features a broad musical palette (including pianist ALEXANDER TSELYAKOV [↓]), with a considerable jazz component. Expect to hear as much viola as saxophone in Brandon.

At the Chan Centre, on the UBC campus, Early Music Vancouver's Summer Festival 2015 (July 26 to August 6) presents eight concerts, including a concert version of Purcell's Dido and Aeneas on July 30. At the Roy Barnett Recital Hall, on the UBC campus, two lute recitals, July 28 and 30, and Pergolesi's Stabat Mater, Aug. 5, are scheduled.

The Quadra Island Festival of Chamber Music, July 22 to 26, opens with a nod to B.C. composers. The opening concert premieres a collaborative work between Campbell River's Curtis Wilson and QIFCM artistic director Philip Hansen. On July 25, Central European flavours dominate, including Dvorak's American String Quartet and music from Bulgaria, played by local lute/guitar player Konstantin Bozhinov.

The Victoria Summer Music Festival runs July 28 to Aug. 11. Among the highlights is an appearance, Aug. 10 and 11, by the Dover Quartet, which scooped up every prize at the 2013 BISQC, with no uncertainty among audience or judges that it deserved the recognition, which included concerts in North America and Europe. The festival also features Canada's renowned Gryphon Trio, after what was reported to be the intriguing performance of an innovative multimedia piece, Illusions, which premiered in Toronto in late May. The Gryphon plays Aug. 8. The Alcan Quartet performs July 30, and two B.C. piano virtuosos, brothers Nicolas and Timothy Chooi, play a recital Aug. 7.

Classical music fans get their main fix in the fall and winter, but towns across the West offer an assortment of summer programs to keep the music alive year-round.

LAMÈQUE CELEBRATES 40 YEARS

The Lamèque International Baroque Music Festival celebrates its 40th anniversary this year with a new artistic director: Quebec recorder player Vincent Lauzer. Four concerts are planned from July 23 to 25. The 23, the festival will open with performances by the three finalists of the Mathieu Duguay Early Music Competition, accompanied by the Mission Saint-Charles Orchestra under the direction of Luc Beauséjour. On the 24th, there will be a "Harpichord Duel" between Mark Edwards and Christophe Dijoux, a reenactment of the friendly duel between Handel and Scarlatti that took place in Rome in 1708. On the 25th, Vincent Lauzer, Luc Beauséjour, and friends will play Baroque and traditional folk music. Finally, to close the festival, the Mission Saint-Charles Choir and Orchestra will perform Handel's Messiah. All concerts take place at Sainte-Cécile Church in Petite-Rivière-de-l'Île. www.festivalbaroque.com

BANFF SUMMER ARTS FESTIVAL BANFF, AB, JUNE 2 TO AUGUST 29

The Banff Centre hosts 85 events from a variety of disciplines (music, dance, opera, theatre, films, lectures, and exhibitions) from June through August. Séance Fiction runs 'til July 26 at the Walter Phillips Gallery. The Banff Mountain Film and Book Festival Summer Screenings include World Tour! (July 18), Radical Reels Tour! (July 11) and Adventure Under the Stars (Aug 14). The 2015 Summer Professional Dance Program creates two co-commissions with the National Ballet of Canada: Orpheus in Black, Eurydice in White by Robert Binet, and one by choreographer Gabrielle Lamb. Two new operas will premiere: A Little Too Cozy, a modern retelling of Mozart's Così fan tutte, from Against the Grain Theatre, and Crush, commissioned by the COC, a "21st century Don Juan tale". Free events include visual arts lectures, late-night jazz, and the "Drawn to Nature" workshops, which give amateurs the chance to sharpen their still-life drawing skills. www.banffcentre.ca

ST-AMBROISE MONTREAL FRINGE FESTIVAL MONTREAL, JUNE 1 TO 21

Take a walk on the weird side at one of the many theatres for Montreal's FRINGE, with music, dance, cabaret, circus, storytelling, and comedy events! The festival opens with

Fringe-For-All, a free show of previews at Café Campus on June 1 and 11. If you prefer to participate, check out events like the Strip Spelling Bee, the 1 am "FRINGE: The 13th Hour" series, or any of the free daily events at Fringe Park (Parc des Amériques), including collaborations with Pknic Électronik, Folk sur le canal, Dr. Sketchy, CJLO, Fantasia Film Festival, Lunch Beat, or Pop Montreal. www.montrealfringe.ca

LUMINATO FESTIVAL TORONTO, JUNE 19 TO 28

Toronto's big summer festival once more delivers with music, visual arts, dance, performance art, film and theatre, as well as talks, literary events, food, and more, all on an epic scale! David Byrne will premiere his ambitious Contemporary Color, "an epic, arena-scale staging of sport, music, dance and culture" pairing 10 international pop stars such as Nelly Furtado, Devonté Hynes, Zola Jesus, Nico Muhly & Ira Glass, and St. Vincent with 10 high school colour guards. R. Murray Schafer's epic oratorio Apocalypsis will get its first full performance since its premier with over 1000 professional and amateur chorists, musicians, conductors, actors, and dancers in one of the largest performances ever staged in Toronto. This year's festival hub at David Pecaut Square is a landscaped "backyard hangout" called Garden of Light, designed by landscape architect Janet Rosenberg. Free events at Festival Hub include garden parties, the Pan American Food Festival, the TSO's "Symphonic Zoo" concert, and Orchestral Karaoke, among others. www.luminatofestival.com

ALIANAIT ARTS FESTIVAL IQALUIT, NU, JUNE 26 TO JULY 1

"Canada's Coolest City" once again hosts a festival with the coolest music! 15 different groups from New York and Toronto to Yellowknife and Greenland will perform music, dance, circus arts, and storytelling. Plenty of blues, bluegrass, and indie music complements the folk music and dancing. Whether you prefer pop crooner David Myles or ARTCIRQ'S (←) "cabaret" show, Alianat will show you just what "cool" means in Canada's north! www.alianait.ca

JUST FOR LAUGHS MONTREAL, JULY 8 TO 28

Big names at this year's Just for Laughs include Neil Patrick Harris, Trevor Noah, and Jane Lynch hosting the Videotron Galas. Mike Myers, Bill Burr, and Dave Chappelle will also be there, and Moroccan Montrealer and francophone comedy star Rachid Badouri makes his English-language debut in The Ethnic Show. But if clubs and big venues aren't your style, the streets will be filled with plenty of performers to tickle your funny bone - like chart-topping musician/satirist Weird Al Yankovic, who performs a free outdoor show on July 21. www.hahaha.com

TD SUNFEST LONDON, ON, JULY 9 TO 12

Once again, Sunfest transforms Victoria Park into a hotspot of world and jazz music as well as food, crafts and visual arts, every day from 11 am. The AFRO-CUBAN ALL STARS (↑) lead a line-up including 30 ensembles from all corners of the world, from Scotland to Senegal to Kurdistan that will keep you dancing for four days! www.sunfest.on.ca

MTL EN ARTS MONTREAL, JULY 1 TO 5

Formerly FIMA and now Mtl en Arts, this festival brings together over 120 visual artists on the pedestrian mall of Ste-Catherine East between St-Hubert and Papineau streets, including Monique Saintonge, Winston McQuade, and Michel Trembay. Every day beginning at noon, the public is invited to browse the various exhibits, interact with the artists, and purchase artwork (credit card purchases possible). "My First Art Gallery" is exclusively for kids under 13. www.festivaldesarts.org

FESTIVAL DES ARTS DE SAINT-SAUVEUR

SAINT-SAUVEUR, QC, JULY 29 TO AUG 8

Rufus Wainwright headlines the FASS with an intimate concert on July 29. As usual, the dance line-up is exciting, with Germany's Gauthier Dance // Dance Company Theaterhaus Stuttgart, Stars of American Ballet, and The International Stars of Ballet. Hailing from Quebec, Coleman Lemieux & Compagnie performs tributes to Elvis Presley and Johnny Cash, and Tentacle Tribe performs a double-feature with Les Ballets Jazz de Montréal and their successes ZERO IN ON, Closer, and Night Box. Georges-Filion Park is the site of free events including the TOHU-BOHU Youth Day and the Scène Desjardins, which hosts a variety of music and dance shows and even a yoga class! www.fuss.ca

summer musical theatre

By NAOMI GOLD

Montreal's Segal Centre for Performing Arts debuts its homegrown production of Mordecai Richler's THE APPRENTICESHIP OF DUDDY KRAVITZ - THE MUSICAL. Richler's iconic oeuvre of ruthless ambition is set in 1950s Montreal and charts Duddy's amoral-cum-criminal path to "success." Desperate to escape St. Urbain Street's Jewish ghetto, the unscrupulous Duddy rationalizes heinous acts by invoking his grandfather's maxim, "A man without land is nobody." Featuring music by prolific and multi-award-winning songwriter Alan Menken (Aladdin, Pocahontas, Little Mermaid, etc.), the show has been nearly three decades in the making. Book and lyrics are by award-winning David Spencer (Weird Romance, New York's Public Theater's La Bohème). Veteran thespian Austin Pendleton directs. An onstage band led by Jonathan Monro & Nick Burgess accompanies the 14-member, all-Canadian cast. June 8-26, with a worldwide premiere on June 11th. www.segalcentre.org

After retiring from the operatic stage, Canadian tenor Ben Heppner has turned his voice to Broadway. The superstar headlines London's revival of TITANIC, which sailed on its maiden North American voyage in May, docking at Toronto's Princess of Wales Theater of Toronto. TITANIC opened on the Great White Way in 1997, to much critical acclaim; although it earned five Tony Awards — including Best Musical

— the show sank after only two years. In 2013, it was revamped and relaunched for the off-West End stage by British director Thom Southerland. Unlike the film version, with its fictitious 'Jack & Rose' love story obligato, this version focuses on a group of real passengers' final hours. Heppner portrays prominent politician/businessman and Macy's co-owner, Isidor Straus, in addition to three other roles. Celebrated American composer Maury Yeston (Nine, Grand Hotel), wrote both music and lyrics, while Peter Hess Stone (Will Rogers Follies, 1776) penned the book for this Southerland revival. May 19-June 21. www.mirvish.com

Montreal's comedy festival Juste Pour Rire, presents GREASE (in French) this summer, at Théâtre St-Denis. Tickets were selling out so fast that as of mid-April producers had to extend the run in order to meet demand. Grande dame of Quebec theatre and cinema, Denise Filiatrault, serves as artistic advisor, while Toronto-based Andrew Shaver directs. Set in 1950s Chicago, the cast of working-class characters comprises a cross-section of youth subculture called "greasers," hence the title. Local singers Annie Villeneuve and Jason Roy Léveillé play lovestruck teenagers, Sandy & Danny. The musical score invokes early 50's rock 'n roll and features a 17-member cast, which includes Normand Brathwaite (as Vince). Translated and adapted by Yves Morin, with musical direction by Guillaume St-Laurent. June 17-July 25. www.hahaha.com

by RENÉ-FRANÇOIS AUCLAIR, ÉRIC CHAMPAGNE
& CAROLINE RODGERS

Saint John String Quartet

Montage

SJSQ005. 2015. 61 minutes, 9 seconds

This New Brunswick-based ensemble provides an insightful overview on various influences of six composers that made Canada their home. Through this contemporary music, the string quartet found a surprising vehicle for allowing us to travel in time and space. Cultural diversity plays a part in Anthony Genge's Asian minimalism and Kutnowski's spellbinding sensory experiences and image-filled memories of Argentina. Richard Kipp's folkloric pastoral ends peacefully on the east coast. Musicians pay close attention to sounds they produce in order to depict colours of original watercolours. The music is always recognizable and easily accessible, and helps the quartet break through traditional structures. A nice acoustic surrounds the four musicians in this remarkable discovery of lesser-known Canadian repertoire. A valuable addition.

It's funny how many contemporary works in the opera world take place in an airport. To jog your memory, think of Philippe Manoury's 60° Parallèle (1997), Jonathan Dove's Flight (1998), and Simon Bertrand's Prochain départ (2005). Canadian composer and conductor Brian Current propels us into the air! All the action takes place aboard an airplane, from take-off to the dramatic fall. This assorted microcosm behind closed doors brings about several melodic introspections and a few interesting theatrical interactions. The short opera benefits from Current's skillful and intelligent writing, as well as a brilliant and well-constructed libretto. Emotion is also part of the work, as the pilot's final aria, sung by a masterful Alexander Dobson, is dramatically touching. This opera is clearly a great success and deserves to appear in Naxos's Canadian Classics collection. To our disappointment, the work was not made available on DVD, particularly since there is a video recording of this opera on YouTube. The opera was performed at the 2011 Premio Fedora Italian Festival. E.C.

Les Vents français: Winds & Piano

Les Vents français, Éric Le Sage, piano

Warner Classics 0325646231850 3 CDs (179 minutes, 27 seconds)

The Vents Français quintet gathers the world's foremost woodwind soloists, including flutist Emmanuel Pahud and clarinetist Paul Meyer. These soloists have joined forces in this triple album with pianist Éric Le Sage to perform a promising program of chamber music with piano. The first disc draws on French repertoire, beginning with Poulenc's popular Sextuor—played with a smile, of course! The Sextuor composed by Louise Ferrenc, a contemporary of Berlioz, is a magnificent discovery. It's a wonderful and cheerful work. Roussel's short Divertissement makes a great impression; André Caplet's Quintette (minus French horn) shines through with its balance and inspired colours. The second disc includes famous quintets by Mozart and Beethoven, performed with clarity and gracefulness. The third disc presents Ludwig Thuille's mighty and symphonically ambitious Sextuor, as well as Rimsky-Korsakov's Quintet (without oboe) described as lively and light, passionate and impish. Woodwind enthusiasts will enjoy this great program!

◆ MONTREAL BAROQUE FESTIVAL

Montreal, June 25 to 28
514-845-7171 | www.montrealbaroque.com

Earth to ether, alcohol to flames, tobacco to smoke and terrestrial to celestial; Transformations will inspire the 2015 Montreal Baroque Festival! Ascending to Parnassus with legendary violinist, Sigiswald Kuijken, sipping cognac with Louis XIV's chef, smoking a pipe with the eccentric, mercenary soldier and fashionable pop, Tobias Hume, dancing with gypsies, singing of ascensions, challenging with new music, waking to the ethereal nyckelherpa or joining the marathon; the 2015 Festival offers a colourful cornucopia of musical inspirations designed to entertain, elevate and enlighten!

DENYS ARCAND & HIS PASSION FOR OPERA

by CAROLINE RODGERS

WAH KEUNG CHAN, DENYS ARCAND & LAURENT PATENAUDE during La Scena Musicale's fundraising event, May 3, 2015. PHOTO Mario Fazio

On May 3, La Scena Musicale held a benefit event to raise funds for the refurbishment of its website. Filmmaker Denys Arcand, loyal friend and supporter of La Scena, generously donated his time to participate in a public discussion about the opera that he staged for Les Violons du Roy, Zémire et Azor. His passionate presentation, framed by performances by soprano Florie Valiquette, was attended by about 180 people.

Wah Keung Chan, Founder and Co-Editor in Chief of La Scena Musicale, and Laurent Patenaude, Head of Artistic Administration for Les Violons du Roy, spoke with Denys Arcand about his film L'âge des ténèbres, about Zémire et Azor, and about his love of opera in general.

WKC: In L'âge des ténèbres, Rufus Wainwright performs Du moment qu'on aime from Zémire et Azor. Why did you choose Rufus to sing this rather than a trained operatic tenor?

Denys Arcand: Yes, I could have. The character of Jean-Marc is someone who is not an intellectual, who would have a tendency to be more familiar with pop stars, so I thought Rufus would be perfect because I was looking for someone who would be a popular singer but at the same time who had a good knowledge of music. Rufus, because of his family, has been brought up singing. He also made a recording with American pop singer David Byrne, Au fond du temple saint, the famous duet from Les Pêcheurs de perles; Rufus sang the baritone part, so I knew he was able to do it.

Laurent Patenaude: What I find interesting about that choice of music and the stage direction is that we enter immediately into the fantasy world of Jean-Marc.

Denys Arcand: Yes, he's a person who lives in his dreams and fantasies. But in any case, Zémire et Azor is also a fantasy, it's a fairy tale, it's Beauty and the Beast, which was written in the seventeenth century by Madame Lep-rince de Beaumont, and Grétry set it to music a century later. But it's a magical story that belongs to the collective unconscious of the whole Western world, a bit like "Tom Thumb."

WKC: Zémire et Azor contains some well-known arias, and there were a lot of recordings from this opera in the 1930s, 40s, and 50s. Why do you think that we've kind of lost interest?

Denys Arcand: It's an opera that is almost impossible to stage, because first it's an opéra comique, which means there's a lot of spoken lines, and many that are exceedingly bad. So I took part of the vocabulary, transformed it, and rewrote the recitatives. Mathieu [Lussier] composed the music, and we kept only the arias with new recitatives. And I think it turned out great, but you be the judge when we show it. Otherwise, you can't stage it; it's so dated, it's impossible.

Laurent Patenaude: Before Zémire et Azor, did you ever think of directing an opera?

Denys Arcand: I thought about it vaguely. I had already received an offer from the Canadian Opera Company to direct Wagner's Ring Cycle. They had chosen Robert Lepage to do the first, François Girard the second, Atom Egoyan the third, and they needed someone to do the end, "Twilight of the Gods." I refused because I hate Wagner with a passion. I had also discussed it with Opéra de Montréal. But I don't like the way things are done in opera. If I put on a play, the most important part of my work is choosing the performers. Whereas generally in opera, except in Europe, the directors don't choose the singers. And that leads to situations that I don't enjoy. In the case of Zémire et Azor, Mathieu Lussier and I chose all the performers together.

WKC: There are different interpretations of Beauty and the Beast. What is your vision of that legend?

Denys Arcand: I think it is popular because all through the late Middle Ages and later, you had lots of arranged marriages, so very often the parents would try to marry their daughter to some rich old guy. So one of the ways to deal with this would be to accept the idea of Beauty and the Beast that someone might have a very ungainly appearance, and underneath might lie a heart of gold, a wonderful personality.

WKC: Now that you've had the first taste of staging an opera, are you hooked? Do you want to do more operas?

Denys Arcand: If I could have roughly the same conditions as this, I would do it again tomorrow. But these conditions are exceptional. Maybe it will turn out to be possible, who knows?

WKC: Have you ever thought of writing the libretto for an opera?

Denys Arcand: I already tried with François Dompierre, we worked on it for a long time. But, nowadays, it's complicated to write an opera. I teased François saying: "Come on, Don Giovanni was composed in three weeks, what are you waiting for?" He replied: "Yes, but for Mozart it was easy, because it came after Bach and Bach established the canon of Western music, so Mozart was not to question the style to use." Today, what style of music do you write? Do you use a computer? Try serialism? Minimalism? Today's composer faces these questions before even starting. Now that he has a host of musical styles and a host of possible paths to take, it's more complicated. And François never resolved this question.

PREVIEWS

By CAROLINE RODGERS & RENÉE BANVILLE

L'ANNÉE JEAN DEROME

Figurehead of Québec's musique actuelle, composer, multi-instrumentalist and ideaman JEAN DEROME (♠) is celebrating his 40-year career. The inaugural concert was held on May 14 at the Festival internationale de musique actuelle de Victoriaville. Until June 2016, the richness and variety of his work as a musician, improviser, composer and archivist will be highlighted during many concerts and events. He will appear at the Festival international de Jazz de Montréal with the Trio Derome Guilbeault Tanguay, who will perform his compositions. L'Astral, 28 June at 6 pm. www.jeanderome.com

CONSTANTINOPE - THE GOLDEN DOOR

From yesterday's Constantinople to the Istanbul of today, Kiya Tabassian and his musicians offer a musical portrait of this luminous city situated between East and West. The Golden Door's classical and popular music illustrates the cultural wealth and diversity that have made this city a crossroad of civilizations. Produced by Constantinople, in collaboration with Fondation Arte Musica. Salle Bourgie, 4 June, 8 pm. www.bourgiehall.ca

VIOLONS DU ROY - MOZART À PARIS

The record by the Violons du Roy and the young harpist VALÉRIE MILOT has been critically acclaimed. Milot joins the orchestra again, under the direction of Mathieu Lussier, to interpret Boieldieu's charming concerto, an essential part of the harp repertoire. Also on the program: Rameau, Gossec and Mozart. Salle Bourgie, 5 June, 7:30 pm. www.violonsduroy.com

BRITTEN OPERA WITH THE ENSEMBLE BOP

A young company dedicated to the presentation of ballets, operas and pantomimes, BOP presents Burning Fiery Furnace, Second Parabole for Church Performance by Benjamin Britten, a monument of the 20th century operatic repertoire, created at the Aldeburgh Festival in 1966 and in Montreal during the World Expo in 1967. Bringing together eight instrumentalists, six vocal soloists and a choir, this production stages the disturbing biblical story of the three children in the furnace, accompanied by the sounds of an unusual instrumental ensemble, under the direction of Hubert Tanguay-Labrosse. Staging: Marc Béland. A BOP production, in collaboration with Fondation Arte Musica. Salle Bourgie, 11 June, 8 pm. www.bourgiehall.ca

A GERMAN REQUIEM

L'Orchestre symphonique des jeunes de Montréal and the Chœur Classique de Montréal present Brahms' German Requiem, a humanist work in the Lutheran tradition, that Brahms would willingly have titled a "human requiem". Louis Laviguer will conduct the choir and soloists Andréanne Brisson-Paquin, soprano, and Hugo Laporte, baritone. Maison symphonique, 11 June, 8 pm.

www.choeurclassiquedemontreal.qc.ca

MUSICIANS OF THE OSM - SOIR D'ÉTÉ

Schubert will be the chosen composer for the closing of the series. The Mouvement de quatuor or "Quartetsatz" and the Quintette à cordes en do majeur, Schubert's last chamber work created 20 years after his death. With violinists Olivier Thouin and Marianne Dugal, violist Lambert Chen and cellists Anna Burden and Sylvain Murray. Salle Bourgie, 12 June, 6:30 pm. www.bourgiehall.ca

ORCHESTRE MÉTROPOLITAIN IN THE PARK

This summer, the OM is playing in the park. Catch the July 24 concert at Vancouver Park in Île-des-Sœurs, featuring the great classics from Mozart and Schubert directed by Andrei Fehrer. Maestro YANNICK NÉZET-SÉGUIN will direct the Fantasy-Overture from Romeo and Juliet and Dvorák's Symphony No. 9 on two occasions - July 29 at the park on Île Lebel de Repentigny and July 30 at the Chalet de la Montagne as part of the Campbell Concerts series. www.orchestremetropolitain.com

OSM IN THE PARK

Following Wilfrid Pelletier's tradition, the OSM will give free concerts in Montreal's parks this summer. This year, assistant conductor Dina Gilbert will direct the concerts, and violinist Yolanda Bruno, winner of the OSM 2013 competition, will be the guest soloist. The OSM will perform at the following parks: Montréal-Nord (July 17, 7:30 pm.), Blainville (July 22, 7:30 pm.) and Pincourt (July 23, 7:30 pm.). www.osm.ca

L'ORCHESTRE SYMPHONIQUE DE LAVAL

The city of Laval turns 50 this year. In celebration, the Orchestre symphonique de Laval, under Alain Trudel's baton, is giving free concerts in parks and public spaces throughout the city. Concerts are on June 4 at the Centre de la Nature, June 11 at the Berge Saint-Maxime, June 18 at the Parc des Prairies. All begin at 7:30 pm On June 6, the concert in honour of Laval's birthday will take place at the Centropolis and feature soprano Marie-Josée Lord. Two additional concerts will be held: August 13 at the Berge aux Quatre-Vents at 7:30 pm and August 16, 2 pm, on the grounds of the Hôpital de la Cité de la Santé. www.osl.qc.ca

MCGILL INTERNATIONAL STRING QUARTET (MISQA)

MISQA was established in 2010. The Academy invites emeritus professors annually who share their experience with four exceptional quartets and four emerging ones. The opening concert on August 9 will be with the Miró Quartet, and the Parker Quartet will perform at the closing concert on August 22. The Grands Concerts are at Pollack Hall on August 13, 14, 20 and 21 at 7 pm and at Tanna Schulich Hall on August 15 and 22, 2 pm August 9 - 22. www.misqa.com
